Salt Creek parks fight for taxing control of track

by TONI GINNETTI

The Salt Creek Park District will face the Arlington Heights Village Board tonight in an attempt to retain taxing control of the Arlington Park Race Track.

The park district's attorney, Ronald M. DeHaan, will represent the district to argue against a move by the Arlington Heights Park District to annex the race track. The Arlington Heights Park District is seeking village support for the action as a condition to building a football stadium at the track for the Chicago Bears.

Salt Creek officials have been invited to the meeting to present their arguments, but indications are that village trustees are leaning toward support of the Arlington Heights Park District proposal.

THE ISSUE already has drawn heated criticism from Salt Creek officials and the race track's attorney who charges the move by the Arlington district is "an act of piracy."

Three other area park districts, including the Palatine, Plum Grove-Countryside and Rolling Meadows park districts have declined to take a stand in the matter, despite the Arlington Heights Park District's request for their support.

The Salt Creek presentation tonight will emphasize the district's recent growth and plans for expansion.

"It will not be shoes being banged on the desk," Salt Creek Atty. Michael Stronberg said. "I think it will be interesting, because I think the people will be impressed with what the park district (Salt Creek) has to say."

JAMES DeVOS, Salt Creek park director, said the district also will dispute what he called "downright lies" which the Arlington Heights Park District has listed in the proposed annexation resolution.

"It is full of misfacts and downright lies," DeVos charged. "They say we were formed by farmers, which is completely untrue. They say our population is 2,000, when I know for a fact it is 4,000. They come right out and say we are not a viable park district."

DeVos said the district also will challenge the Arlington Heights Park District's argument that the park district boundaries should coincide with the village boundaries, which include the race track property.

"How can they say that when they've annexed land outside the village (in the Lynnwood area near Ill. Rte. 53 and Wilke Road)," he charged.

MADISON SQUARE Garden Corp., owners of the race track, have said they would oppose any efforts to disconnect the track from the Salt Creek district. But DeVos said if construction of the stadium hinges on the park district question, the track owners may be "pressured" into the move.

He added, however, the Salt Creek district "definitely" will fight a disconnection move in court if it comes about.

The 450-acre race track provides one-third of the Salt Creek district's total revenue. The district is bounded by Palatine, Wilke, Rohlwing roads and Euclid Avenue and rests within the municipal limits of Arlington Heights, Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

LONNIE JACKSON, of Arlington Heights, cruises back to Mount Prospect Fire Station No. 2 in the department's 1933 Howe fire engine. The engine, used to educate school children on the hazards of playing with fire and the history of firefighting, is part of a fire prevention program.

Knowledge, not water, fights blazes

Would you like to be a fire chief?

by DAVE GALANTI

Lonnie Jackson hopes eventually every person in Mount Prospect will become their own "fire chief."

Jackson, Arlington Heights, a fire inspector with the Mount Prospect Fire Dept. spends a lot of his time attacking fires with knowledge instead of water. Armed with a vintage fire engine, audio-visual materials and a nonstop line of information, a large part of his job is to inform residents about how to prevent fires.

"We figure fire is a human problem, and that's how we attack it," he said. "About 90 per cent of all fires are caused by people."

AS A RESULT, Jackson said, the only way to substantially decrease the number and severity of fires is to educate the public. The way to do that is to first capture people's attention, he said.

"That's where Engine 76 comes in," Jackson said.

Engine 76 is a pumper built by Howe Apparatus Co. in 1933. Along with its six-cylinder engine and 300-gallon water tank, it has one unusual quality — it talks to school children about fire prevention.

After Jackson gets his audience's attention, a tape within the vehicle tells a story about itself, the history of firefighting and how to prevent fires. The story is brief, but the emphasis is placed strongly on the need to be careful with fire.

"Engine 76 was in use until five years ago," Jackson said. "But now his job is prevention. It parades occasionally, but it has a special reason for parading."

ENGINE 76's show usually is followed by some sort of movie. For young children, a film starring Walt Disney characters is used.

"They'll only listen to me for about five minutes," he said. "But they'll listen to Donald Duck for 20."

Teenagers and adults are a different story, which is why emphasis is placed on educating school children.

"No way a kid in high school wants to hear an engine talk," Jackson said. "And there is no way I can reach all of the adults. But I can get the kids, they're captured. By law, they've got to go to school."

BUT DESPITE all the difficulties, Jackson said he has been getting "good response" to the

New home and 'mini-fair' in revamped July 4th fest

Plans are being made to move the 1976 Arlington Heights Fourth of July Festival from Hersey High School to Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St.

The festival will be a two-week "mini-county fair," featuring pioneer craft demonstrations such as candlemaking and canning in addition to the usual carnival.

"I think we can make the festival more attractive than we have in the past," said Dwight Walton, chairman of Arlington Heights' Festival and Bicentennial committees.

Moving the festival from the high school to a central location and including a Bicentennial theme are just two of the ideas under consideration.

"IT'LL NEVER be another state fair, but I think we can include some livestock, industrial and business exhibits. We'd like to create a Ravinia Park atmosphere where people could come and picnic, then listen to good musical entertainment in the evening," he said.

Walton attended a state Bicentennial conference in Springfield where he sat in on a workshop on state financial grants for local Bicentennial projects, including the designation of historic sites.

"We now plan to submit a grant application next week to the Illinois Bicentennial Commission," Walton said.

The village Bicentennial Commission was given only $2,500 in the village budget, and Walton said as a result, he is concentrating on low-cost projects that can be sponsored by civic organizations or local businesses.

A SPELLING BEE, athletic events, a fire hydrant painting contest for school children and historical displays in storefront windows are part of the program.

In addition, the commission plans to designate six or seven historical sites in Arlington Heights, marking each location with a bronze plaque.

"The Historical Society has given us a list of 15 possible sites, and we now have to narrow things down to six or seven locations," Walton said, "Then, beginning early next year, we'll start announcing one a month."

The sites will be described in a brochure intended to serve as a guide for a historical walking tour through the villale.

The historical markers will take up most of the commission's $2,500 budget.

Congress to deal with short-term energy issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A week back from one recess and a week away from another, Congress will settle at least the short-term energy issue in the next few days.

The Senate and House have scheduled votes on President Ford's expected veto of the six-month extension of oil price controls. Ford reportedly plans to veto the measure Tuesday, and both houses must vote to override it if the extension is to stand.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said the veto vote would take place as scheduled despite efforts toward reaching a compromise with Congress to end controls slowly. In an apparent effort to win wavering members, Ford Saturday said he would accept an interim 45-day extension if the veto of the longer period is sustained.

THE PRESIDENT almost definitely will lose another veto fight Tuesday, on the $7.9 billion education appropriation bill. House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts predicted the veto will be overridden handily.

A Republican agreed. Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., who was leading the effort to sustain the veto, said, "I have to concede that it will be overridden."

Ford is expected to send Congress a resolution this week seeking support for the Egypt-Israel Sinai disengagement accord. The first step is congressional approval of stationing American civilian Technicians in the buffer zone. Later, Congress will deal with the appropriations aspect of the American involvement.

Rubloff subpoenaed for shakedown trial

Nicholas Phillips

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Arthur Rubloff, head of one of Chicago's largest real estate firms, will be subpoenaed as a defense witness when the Wheeling zoning shakedown trial of Nicholas Phillips and Ira Colitz begins this week.

Phillips, a cousin of convicted political boss James Stavros, and Colitz, a former state representative, are scheduled to begin trial today before U.S. District Court Judge Prentice Marshall in Chicago.

The two were charged last January with extorting $50,000 from Wickes Inc., to influence zoning changes for a Wickes warehouse property at 351 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Rubloff and two other officials of Arthur Rubloff and Co. were subpoenaed last week by Phillips' attorney, Louis Carbonaro, and will be asked to explain the alleged payoff to Phillips.

ANOTHER RUBLOFF employee, a Willard Brown Jr., a vice president of the firm, is a key government witness in the case. Brown identified Phillips from a photograph as the bagman who picked up the alleged $50,000 payoff at a Chicago hotel room in December 1971.

Marshall is expected to open the hearing, which may be delayed until Tuesday, by ruling on a motion to throw out as evidence Brown's identification of Phillips because Phillips' constitutional rights allegedly were violated by federal agents who photographed him.

Carbonaro filed the motion in March 1974 and asserted that Phillips, 410 W. Marion, Prospect Heights, was photographed against his will during a federal building lineup and that other persons in the lineup were not similar to Phillips.

Phillips allegedly received the Parks fight to keep track tax control

Salt Creek Park District Atty. Ronald H. DeHaan will confront members of the Arlington Heights Village Board tonight in an attempt to retain Salt Creek taxing control of the Arlington Park Race Track. The Arlington Heights Park District is seeking village support for the annexation action as a condition to building a Chicago Bears football stadium at the track. Indications are Arlington Heights trustees are leaning toward support of the Arlington park district proposal.

Meadows won't meddle

Stephen Person, director of parks and recreation in the Rolling Meadows Park District, said the district's board of commissioners has decided to avoid supporting either side in a dispute between the Arlington Heights and Salt Creek park districts over taxing control of the Arlington Park Race Track. The Rolling Meadows district is the third to decline to support the Arlington Heights district's attempt to gain control of the race track property.

Wheeling to test sewers

Sewer System Evaluation Inc., Chicago, will begin smoke bomb testing Thursday in Wheeling to determine whether there are any illegal connections to the sanitary sewers. The work is estimated to cost about $5,000. Smoke bombs will be placed in sewer lines, and if smoke comes out through a downspout in a house, an illegal connection exists. If there is no illegal connection, the smoke may exit through roof ventpipes.

Dist. 54 building vote looms

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 residents may be asked to approve another referendum for school construction within the next few years. Officials now project they are about $5 million short of the amount needed to build and remodel schools in the district. Voters approved a $16.6 million bond referendum in February 1974 for construction of an administration center, eight new schools, four school additions and renovation of eight old schools.

Parks vote tentatively OKd

The Hoffman Estates Park Board has agreed tentatively to ask voters to approve a November referendum for landscaping, bike paths and walkways and security lighting for the parks. Other improvements listed as priority items include land acquisition, a maintenance facility in the Winston Knolls area, Eisenhower Park development, athletic field lighting and payment of existing loans. Although no dollar figure was set, Board Pres. George Rush estimated the improvement costs at more than $1 million.

Omni-House final grant

Peter Digre, executive director of Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, Wheeling, said the agency will depend solely on public contributions and financial support from the communities it serves. after all the grant money from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission is exhausted. Omni-House will apply for its final $43,000 grant from the commission, and if approved, the grant will be the last of state and federal money for Omni-House.

3 in county die of encephalitis

SPRINGFIELD Ill. (UPI) — The first three Illinois deaths officially linked to St. Louis encephalitis were reported Sunday by the state Dept. of Public Health. All three victims were from Cook County.

However, only two new cases of the mosquito-borne disease, also known as sleeping sickness, were reported Sunday. It was the lowest increase in the spread of the disease in weeks, a health department spokeswoman said.

The two new cases brought the total number of confirmed or suspected Illinois cases to 166, including 102 in Cook County.

THE THREE Illinois deaths were attributed to laboratory blood tests and examination of brain tissue from the bodies. The victims included an 80-year-old woman and a 55-year-old woman, both from the southern Chicago suburb of Harvey who died at Ingalls Hospital, and a "probable" encephalitis death, a 65-year-old woman from suburban Blue Island.

The Public Health Dept. previously reported two deaths in which it was suspected the victims may have had encephalitis.

The persons hospitalized over the weekend included a 65-year-old man in Cook County, who was listed as a probable case, and a 4-year-old girl, who was hospitalized in Belleville in St. Clair County as a suspected case. It also was determined five patients previously listed as suspected cases did not have encephalitis, the spokeswoman said.

The disease is spread from birds to human beings through mosquito bites, and state officials have pressed for intense mosquito abatement programs to curb the problem. Officials said cooler weather may "hold down the activity" of mosquitoes and thus prevent further spreading of the virus.

Chicago teachers reject pact offer

Chicago teachers Sunday rejected the school board's latest contract offer and school Supt. Joseph Hannon said there will be no classes today. It will be the fourth lost school day for the city's 530,000 students.

Negotiations ended late Sunday afternoon and were scheduled to resume this morning.

"There is no settlement," union Vice President Jacqueline Vaughn said after the meeting. "The board's final offer of the old contract for the full year is not acceptable."

She said the school board had once again declined to invite Mayor Richard J. Daley to mediate the talks, and Hannon confirmed that.

"Most of the critical issues have been resolved, except salary increases," Hannon said. "The leadership of the Chicago Teachers Union refused to get these half million children back to school."

Hannon said he is not considering seeking a court injunction to force the teachers back to work.

Turkey's earthquake toll expected to surpass 3,000

DIYARBAKIR, Turkey (UPI) — Officials said Sunday more than 1,700 persons were killed in the earthquake that jolted eastern Turkey Saturday, including at least 500 in the devastated town of Lice.

With communications cut to many outyling areas, rescue workers estimated the final death toll would surpass 3,000, making it that nation's worst earthquake since 1939.

An official announcement in Ankara 24 hours after the quake said there were more than 1,700 confirmed dead, including 500 in Lice, 45 miles north of Diayarbakir, which bore the brunt of the earth shock.

Just a few hours later, officials directing rescue operations on the spot told newsmen they estimated the total number of dead in Lice at 2,000.

"So far we have heard nothing from outlying villages. If 2,000 people died in Lice, you can imagine what fate has befallen the villagers," one official said. "We fear the worst but hope for the best."

Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel flew from Diyarbakir to Lice by helicopter and pledged the government would make good the township's financial losses.

Reporters who accompanied the prime minister said what was once a bustling town of 9,000 inhabitants was now a mass of rubble littered with dead and injured.

Military helicopters and cargo planes flew critically injured victims of the earthquake to hospitals in Ankara, Adana and Samsun.

Measuring 6.8 on the Richter scale, just below the "severe" 7-point mark, the quake struck at noontime when most victims were at home for lunch or praying on mosques.

A late night tremor in eastern Turkey on Aug. 19, 1966, caught 2,529 victims asleep in their beds and an earthquake in 1939 killed 23,000 persons.

Rescue workers said only a handful of partly damaged buildings still stood in Lice, the quake's epicenter.

"We should have counted the living in order to know the real number of dead," one rescue team leader said.

All hospitals in the stricken areas overflowed with injured. Many lay on stretchers in hospital gardens and some in the streets.

Several thousand civilian volunteers and 1,000 Turkish soldiers wrestled with the debris in search for survivors but mostly found only mutilated corpses. Many of the collapsed buildwere simple two-story mud and brick homes of peasants.

Minor aftershocks continued to ripple through provinces of Erzurum, Erzincan, Malatya, Elazig, Urfa, Mardin, Bingol, Siirt, Bitlis, Maras, Van and Kayseri.

Those areas apparently escaped with little or no damage Saturday. But, like Diyarbakir, all are on the path of the Anatolian Fault which has claimed at least 35,000 lives since the 1930s.

OFFICIALS IN Diyarbakir, Turkey said Sunday at least 1,700 persons died in the quake that jolted southeastern and eastern Turkey Saturday. Lice, a town of 9,000 was virtually wiped out. Rescue workers estimated the final death toll would surpass 3,000. Most communications were cut.

Congress may try for higher pay hike

Congress appears likely to reject President Ford's recommended 5 per cent pay raise for its members and other government workers in favor of a bigger, 8.6 per cent hike. The Senate Civil Service Committee is expected next week to adopt a resolution disapproving the President's proposed 5 per cent raise for government workers. The Senate is expected to similarly reject the lower increase.

Giacalone not expected to cooperate

A reputed Mafia chieftain whom James R. Hoffa said he was going to meet the day he vanished will appear — but apparently will not cooperate — when a federal grand jury resumes its Hoffa probe Monday. A laywer for Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, a reputed enforcer in the Detroit mob, said he advised Giacalone to refuse to answer questions. The reason, Atty. S. Allen Early said, is that Giacalone already faces federal indictments for mail fraud and income tax evasion and fears he may undergo questions on those subjects.

Tropical storm heads toward Mexico

A tropical depression inched toward Mexico's port of Tampico Sunday and another sped steadily westward from the mid-Atlantic, hurricane forecasters said. Both storms showed signs of gaining strength. Forecaster John Hope said the National Hurricane Center also is keeping a close watch on a large cloud and shower mass over the northwest Caribbean.

U.S. 'imperialism' in Puerto Rico hit

An international conference of Communists and leftists demanding independence for Puerto Rico went into its closing session in Havana, Cuba, Sunday with the participants accusing the United States of "imperialism" and "colonialism." Former Venezuelan congressman Jose Herrera Oropesa said Saturday Puerto Rico was "the most shameful and dramatic colonial case of our time," according to the official Cuban News Agency Prensa Latina.

Other delegates accused the U.S. government of "mass sterilization" of Puerto Rican women and of economic exploitation.

British army blowing up Ireland bridges

British army engineers Sunday started blowing up roadbridges leading to the Irish Republican in what the army said was a bid to halt armed incursions of Republican guerrillas. The demolitions on the South Armagh section of the 300-mile border dividing Northern Ireland from the Republic followed a government pledge it would crack down on a wave of violence that has taken 15 lives in less than a week.

Kuwait views oil price stability

Long-term oil price stability hinges on consumer-produced dialogue to establish pricing systems, Kuwait Finance Minister Abdel Rahman Salem Al-Atiqi said Sunday. The alternative is confrontation, Al-Atiqi told UPI, saying the oil-producing countries had the right to recover an estimated 25-30 per cent loss in oil dollar buying power when prices are adjusted Sept. 24 by the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Conspiracy discounted 'at this time'

Lyn 'had' to try to shoot Ford

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme was described Sunday by one of her jailers as munching a peanut butter and jelly sandwich and explaining that she "had" to try to shoot President Ford because nobody was paying any attention to what she was saying.

The pint-sized, red-haired Miss Fromme, being held in an isolation cell in the Sacramento jail, was said to be in "good spirits."

Federal investigators, discounting "at this time" evidence of conspiracy in the alleged assassination attempt last Friday on the state capitol ground here, were preparing to present Miss Fromme's case to a grand jury on Wednesday.

A jailer told of a conversation with the 5-foot-tall Miss Fromme, who was wrestled to the ground by a Secret Service agent when she aimed a loaded Colt .45 at Ford.

"Well, you know," he quoted her, "when people around you treat you like a child and pay no attention to the things you say, you have to do something."

The woman, nicknamed "Squeaky" because of her high-pitched voice, was kept alone in a cell without television surveillance. The jailer said she was maintaining a vegetarian diet and turned down meat dishes.

It was reported Sunday that Miss Fromme, 26, and her roommate, Sandra Good, 31, had been rejected earlier this year when they tried to visit the leader of their love cult — mass murderer Charles Manson — in San Quentin Prison.

Officials said the two women approached a lawyer for Public Advocates to get his help in the matter, first writing to him and then appearing at his home. The lawyer contacted police, who admonished the women of possible legal action against them.

Miss Good said "Squeaky acted totally of her own volition — Manson didn't order her to do this."

It was also reported that Miss Fromme and other associates have been trying for months to recruit new members for their cult in the Sacramento and San Francisco areas.

'Squeaky' gun made in 1911

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The .45-caliber gun which Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme pointed at President Ford in California last week was sold as government surplus more than 60 years ago, a Treasury Department official said Sunday.

It was manufactured for the government by the Colt firearms company in 1911, the year the Colt 45 — which became one of America's most popular sidearms — was developed.

"It was used in the Army for a period of time," said Rex D. Davis, director of the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. Then the gun was sold as Army surplus in 1913.

Davis said the National Firearms Tracing Center has not been able to track the gun's history after that, although it still may be possible to trace it further if Army records of the sale exist.

Rex D. Davis

He said the Army in recent years has stopped selling handguns as surplus. "Generally, they are reducing them for scrap now so that they can't be repaired."

Mail against Mideast involvement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford may think the Israel-Egytian accord is the greatest achievement of this decade, but Americans by the hundreds are writing their senators to say "No!" to further U.S. involvement on foreign soil.

"Remember Vietnam? No Americans in the Middle East!" read one post card received last week by an East Coast Republican.

An informed UPI survey showed that postcard was typical of mail received by committee members about the accord — a first step toward peace in the volatile Mideast that Ford has hailed as a great achievement.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., has received 35 letters, all against the accord; Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., has gotten 180 letters against it and just 20 in favor; 15 of the 19 letters to Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., Tenn., were against it, as were 24 of the 28 letters to Sen Dick Clark, D-Iowa.

In Moscow, meantime a Soviet newspaper said the Israeli-Egytian interim peace agreement does not advance an overall Middle East settlement and called for multi-sided talks to settle the crisis.

In Beirut, the pro-Libyan newspaper As Safir said the Soviet Union does not intend to leave the Middle East region for the United States and will fight American diplomatic efforts in the area. Quoting a "high-ranking," Soviet official, the newspaper said, "The Middle East does not only represent an international matter for the Soviet Union, but has also become an internal soviet matter."

Elsewhere in Beirut, police reported the massacre of at least 12 passengers aboard a bus ambushed in the Maronite Christian Village of Zghorta, the hometown of Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh. The murders came during a day of fighting between rival political factions.

In a statement broadcast over Beirut Radio, Premier Rashid Karami denounced the bus massacre and appealed for calm. He said he had called an emergency meeting with his cabinet ministers for Monday to discuss the crisis.

Guardsmen on the scene in Boston

BOSTON (UPI)—Six hundred National Guard military policemen moved to Boston Sunday when the city's precise planning for a safe opening of schools Monday began to crumble under a police contract dispute.

While Mayor Kevin H. White, tieless in a blue blazer at his office, announced the surprise mobilization of the Guard, some 3,000 anti-busing demonstrators staged an afternoon-long protest demonstration outside City Hall.

"We have two sacred words — 'resist' and 'never,'" called Virginia Sheehy, chairperson of ROAR (Restore Our Alienated Rights). The crowd called back: "Boston's on the warpath! Boston's on the warpath!"

Police Commissioner Robert dl Grazia said he did not believe the use of National Guard troops "will hamper us at all" if the soldiers are needed to replace policemen who call in sick.

Their use depends on the number of police who call in sick. A total of 258 reported sick Sunday, more than double the 120 who called in ill Saturday. The Boston Police Patrolmen are protesting the shuffling of schedules required to place the planned 1,500 police on the street.

In Louisville, Ky., meanwhile, 925 armed National Guardsmen remained on patrol duty. Officials hoped the relative calm the troops helped restore to a community wracked by weekend antibusing riots would encourage better school attendance Monday.

Although the violence was largely confined to Friday night and early Saturday when more than 10,000 rioters fought with police near two suburban high schools, an additional 125 arrests were made Saturday night and early Sunday to prevent disorderly mobs from forming.

The new arrests raised to nearly 500 the total of busing protesters taken into custody since the nation's largest new desegregation busing system went into effect in Jefferson County schools Thursday. Most have been released on bond.

MEMBERS OF THE Kentucky National Guard keep watch as school bus arrives at Southern High School in suburban Louisville Sunday in preparation for resumption of court-ordered busing today. More than 900 members of the National Guard have joined to help state and local police.

Current economic policies OK: Simon

by MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON — Treasury Sec. William Simon said Sunday present fiscal and monetary controls can produce greater employment and reduced inflation without additional steps by the administration.

Simon said in a television interview on NBC-TV's Meet the Press that the nation will "continue to have positive real growth in 1976 and a declining employment rate, and it's going to be a lot faster than budget projections."

"I don't think additional steps must be taken," he said. "We have the policies in place — the fiscal and monetary policies that we are attempting to bring into balance that over the long run are going to solve this problem."

He said signs of growing inflation last month result from "special factos" such as rising oil and food prices that "will pass through the econmy."

AT THE SAME time, Simon said it was too early to decide whether this year's tax cut should be extended past next Jan. 1.

Simon said he would wait a month or two, when more economic indicators are available and the size of a world-wide oil price hike, if any, is known before deciding whether to recommend another round of tax reductions. He denied that he already is leaning in favor of a tax increase.

UPI's boxscore of economic indicators bears out predictions of a rising econmy — except for static unemployment statistics — but indicates that inflation is rising at an annual rate of 4.4 per cent.

Here is a summary of the latest figures:

• Unemployment: The unemployment rate held in August at 8.4 per cent, with rehired industrial workers off-setting still-growing numbers of jobless teenagers and minorities. The montly rate was the same as July and slightly below the 8.6 per cent of June.

• Inflation: The Consumer Price Index jumped 1.2 per cent in July, the steepest monthly rise since last September, and on the heels of an 0.8 increase in June. In July the annual rate was 4.4 per cent — even higher than had been predicted by administration officials who warned of a new increase.

• Real earnings: The average worker's "real" income — wages plus fringe benefits after allowing for inflation—fell 0.5 per cent in July and is now down 0.3 per cent in the past 12 months.

• Wholesale prices: Paced by sharp price rises for fuel and other energy products, wholesale prices rose 0.8 per cent in August. Combined with July's 1.2 per cent spurt, the increase marked the biggest two-month advance in wholesale prices since last October and November.

• Productivity: Productivity increased 9.5 per cent in the June quarter for its highest quarterly gain in more than four years. The increase reflected a 4.5 per cent increase in output and a 4.5 per cent decline in workhours.

• Trade: The U.S. balance of payments, bolstered by less foreign investment, less foreign travel by Americans and more exports, scored a $1.23 billion surplus in the second quarter of the year. It followed a $2.95 billion surplus in the first quarter. It was the sixth straight month in the black for the trade ledger.

• Indicators: The index of leading business indicators rose 1.7 per cent in July to sustain the longest upward climb in 2½ years. The July gain followed "a very strong upward revision" of 1 per cent in the June index to 2.9 per cent. The index has in the past accurately forecast economic prosperity or recession.

• GNP: The "real" Gross National Product — with inflation removed from the figures — rose 1.6 per cent in the second quarter of 1975 for the first increase since the recession began. The growth in the April-June period was the highest since the first quarter of 1971, and followed a 1.4 per cent decline in the first quarter of the year.

• Output: Industrial production increased in July for the first back-to-back monthly gain since the end of the Arab oil embargo. Output of the nation's mines, factories and utilities climbed 0.5 per cent in July to match the revised June increase. It had declined for the previous 8 months.

• Housing starts: Residential housing starts rose to a 1.238 million unit annual rate in July compared to 1.07 million in June. It was the fastest pace since July a year ago, when the annual rate was 1.314 million

14% increase over last year

Inflation, high gas prices send driving cost soaring

DETROIT (UPI) — Inflation and the rising price of gasoline have pushed up the cost of driving the family car by 14 per cent in the last year.

Figures released by the Hertz Corp. car leasing division also showed why many Americans are switching to small cars that now account for nearly one of every two sales. The small cars are $600 a year cheaper to operate than mid-sized models and $1,000 cheaper than big cars that travel 10,000 miles a year.

For the owner of an intermediate-sized, two-door sedan — like the Torino or Chevelle — the cost has climbed from 24 cents a mile one year ago to just over 27 cents in the first half of 1975.

A subcompact, such as the Vega, Pinto or any small foreign model, have jumped to 21 cents a mile, up 2 cents a mile from last year.

FOR THE LARGER, standard-size car, owners have seen the cost increase from 28.5 cents a mile in 1974 to 31 cents this year.

While gasoline prices have climbed to 57.5 cents a gallon this year from 55 cents in mid-1974 and 35 cents a gallon two years ago, the heavy cost of owning a car have been the greatest factor in the higher operating costs, said J. E. Menendez, the Hertz group vice president.

Depreciation — that is, the difference between a car's purchase price and its trade-in value — took the biggest jump. It went up an average of two cents a mile over one year.

Interest costs, insurance, licenses, parts, service and repairs also climbed.

Menendez said the Hertz figures are higher than some government, automaker and driver club figures because other computations may ignore interest charges and also assume that the same person owns a car for 10 years.

"THAT PRODUCES unrealistically low per-mile expense figures that are not applicable to the more typical drivers, who keep a new car for one to five years," Menendez said.

He noted that last year the Internal Revenue service increased the level of allowable car business travel costs to 15 cents a mile for distances under 15,000 miles and 10 cents for mileage over that. This resulted in a 13-cent average for 25,000 miles.

"The typical intermediate car will virtually never be run for as little as 15 cents a mile if the motorist drives fewer than 15,000 miles per year," he said. "And the cost will not drop under 13 cents until the auto is driven for 25,000 miles a year for six years."

Hertz computed its costs on a car driven an average of 10,000 miles a year for three years before it is traded in. The expenses included gasoline, oil, parts, service repairs, licenses, fees, insurance, interest and depreciation.

'Midwest young adults are thrifty'

by United Press International

Young Americans are not spendthrifts.

They even show signs of good money management, especially the ones who live in the Midwest.

A survey completed recently by a national financial services firm, Pioneer Western Corp., turned up plenty of evidence of sound financial judgment by Midwestern adults 21 to 25 years old, said W. Scane Bowler, chairman and chief executive officer of the firm.

The study covered nine states, including Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Nebraska.

Bowler said the survey showed:

• Three-quarters of all 21-to-25-year-olds in the Midwest listed home ownership, savings or investments and life insurance as the three most important items in their financial preferences list. The national average, Bowler said, was 63 per cent.

• Midwesterners in the 21-to-25-year-old bracket, own a greater proportion of life insurance issued, 40 per cent, than policy-holders in any other age bracket in the area. Nationally, the age group accounts for 37 per cent of life insurance policies.

• Fifty-six per cent of the young Midwesterners have explored professional financial planning; nationally less than 50 per cent have done so.

• Sixty-three per cent of young Midwesterners regard themselves as excessive spenders compared with the national average of 77 per cent.

• Less than 20 per cent of Midwesterners look on air-conditioning, dishwashers and color television as "must" items for the home compared with 35 per cent nationally.

The survey showed the most fiscally aware young consumers in the Midwest were, in order: Young marrieds; single women and single men.

Additionally, only 58 per cent of the youth group in the nine states considered a college education of top importance, compared with 60 per cent nationally. And less than 20 per cent in the Midwest felt a master's degree was worthwhile.

Congress acts to limit use by wealthy

War declared on tax loopholes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional tax writers have declared war on the rollover, a system of pyramiding shelters used by the wealthy to lower or even escape income taxes.

The House Ways and Means Committee already has voted sharp limits on the use of real estate tax shelters, closing a potential billion dollar loop hole.

It plans to consider 20 tax reforms in all, most dealing with loopholes used by the wealthy.

The term "rollover" comes from the practice of rolling wealth over to a new tax shelter as the benefits provided by an old shelter expire, letting the tax avoidance — all legal — start anew.

Ways and Means is legislating against the rollover in a tax-reform measure being prepared during six weeks of scheduled meetings.

THE COMMITTEE voted 24 to 10 last week for step-by-step limitation of real estate tax shelters, starting next year. Real estate has been a favored shelter for professionals, Hollywood people and executives with earned annual incomes of $100,000 or more.

That reform alone would take away an estimated quarter billion dollars worth of tax preferences for the wealthy in 1976. By 1980, when the measure becomes fully effective, those who have used real estate shelters would be paying $1 billion in additional taxes.

This week the committee plans to look at other shelters involving oil drilling, motion picture ventures and cattle breeding and feeding. All are important to the rollover system.

The staff of the joint internal revenue committee says the total value of deductions allowed for the wealthy, low and middle income persons and corporations stands at $103.3 billion a year.

THE ROLLOVER IS particularly useful when a tax shelter provides for deferral of taxes, rather than outright tax forgiveness.

Deferral works this way: A taxpayer takes a quick depreciation on property in the early years of ownership so a paper loss can be shown for tax purposes.

Or this way:

A taxpayer writes off in one-year the full cost of cattle feed or certain oil drilling or vineyard development costs. Again, a paper loss can be shown.

In each case, the paper loss is used to offset taxes due on actual earnings. That, the joint committee said, "may significantly reduce the individual's tax liability."

But there comes a time when taxes are due on the shelter.

"Taxpayers in this situation have found it advantageous to invest in another tax shelter to provide a rollover or further deferral of taxes," a committee staff study explained.

"THE NET EFFECT of deferral is that the taxpayer grants himself an interest-free loan from the federal government during the period of the tax deferral. Over a period of years, this loan can be worth a substantial amount of money.

As an example, the study said, taxpayer with accelerated deductions worth $100,000 might invest the tax savings in 7 per cent tax-exempt bonds. It said with interest compounded annually the money would double in less than 11 years.

"In other words," the study said, "deferral can be worth as much as total tax forgiveness after a period of time."

Financial 'catastrophe' looms: economist

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Nobel Prize-winning economist Friedrich A. von Hayek says the Western world is repeating the mistakes it made after World War I and risking the same economic catastrophe that hit during the 1920s.

Hayek, co-winner of the 1974 Nobel in economics, believes Europe's inflationary agony after World War I has been forgotten and Western Governments must change their course of action if they don't want to see inflation get out of control again and lead to a major depression.

Hayek learned about inflation the hard way.

In 1923 he was working as a civil servant in his native Austria. He said his salary rose from 3,000 marks a month to one million marks a month in less than a year.

HAYEK RECALLED that he and his friends would immediately buy food with their paychecks, because prices would go higher each day.

Hayek is elder statesman of the "austrian" economic school. It emphasizes the study of individual actions in the market and opposes government interference in the economy through tariffs, regulations, special interest laws and particularly deficit spending.

The Nobel Laureate spent three months in the U.S. this summer, culminating in a week-long conference of Austrian school economists held at the University of Hartford.

Hayek, a vigorous 76, also has written on politics, philosophy, psychology and history. He has spent long periods at the universities of London and Chicago.

The culmination of his life's work, a trilogy on liberty and insitutions for a free society, is almost finished. Hayek believes the U.S. government today is too powerful and that democracy, as now practiced, is "discrediting itself."

A MORE IMMEDIATE threat, Hayek said in an interview, is the possibility of renewed high inflation. He said the Western world has for years relied on inflation, excessive expansion of the money supply, to try to prevent unemployment.

"They've been attempting to maintain full employment by the wrong means," he said, "means which in the short run create full employment but in the long run lead to misdirections of labor which after a while can be maintained only by rapidly accelerating inflation and in the end, not at all."

Nations that have relied on high inflation this way, particularly the U.S. and Britain, Hayek said, must abandon the policy or face even worse price increases and ultimately, depression as severe as in the 1930s.

The solution, he said, is to allow central banks, such as the U.S. Federal Reserve, to make only limited increases of the money supply, pegged to population growth and possible increased productivity. He said governments also must cease deficit spending, the classical Keynesian policy for economic stimulus.

"Fiscal and monetary policy go together," Hayek said. "It has been the belief that government, by deficit spending, does actual good.

"IT WAS THE economists who persuaded the government to do this and of course the politicians didn't need much persuading. They just loved it."

Hayek is critical of the power of government and said people may lose faith in democratic governments in which power is obtained by "buying the support of particular groups."

"It turns out, and it might have been foreseen, that unlimited democracy is an impossible form of government," he said. "Democracy, as much as any other form of government, needs limitations."

He called the present system "unlimited government under democracy," and added, "We must find a way of combining limitation of governmental power with democratic exercise of that power."

The final volume of his trilogy is devoted to constructing alternative democratic systems. One such system might involve separating powers now held by Congress.

"CONGRESS NOW both lays down laws and conducts government," he said. "There is no reason why they should be in the hands of the same body. I think that might well be divided between two distinct elected bodies."

Hayek laughs a little as he describes himself as a "liberal."

The term, he said, used to mean a person who opposed vigorous government activity but in the 1930s "the liberals, the American liberals, stole the term and it was perverted into almost its opposite."

"When I was a young man," he said, "the only liberals in my sense were old men. There were no young men who believed in it. Now all the old men are socialists and it is the young who are again discovering liberalism."

Teachers, board reach accord

by MARILYN McDONALD

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 teachers and board members have reached tentative agreement on a contract for 1975-76 after a 4½-hour negotiating session recently.

Neither side would release details of the final settlement before teachers vote on the proposal Thursday afternoon. Edward Searing, spokesman for the teacher union negotiating team, said Friday, "I feel the teachers will accept the contract. Not everyone is happy with it, but it satisfies the teachers' needs."

BOTH SIDES had said they were very close to a settlement after their last meeting Wednesday. That was the first time both sides had met since an impasse was declared by the board Aug. 25. At that time, board members said a 10 per cent hike in the financial package was their last offer. Teachers held out for a 15 per cent financial hike at that time.

The impasse was resolved after both the school board and district teachers instructed their teams to return to the bargaining table as soon as possible.

"Even before the impasse, we didn't feel that far apart," Searing said. "We both had some moving to do, but we weren't that far apart."

Kenneth Rodeck, school board president and a member of the board negotiating team, termed the recent bargaining session "friendly."

Almost 99 per cent of our bargaining was on money," he said.

Rodeck said the contract could be ratified at Thursday's board meeting if teachers have approved it and if board members approve the terms.

According to information released when impasse was declared, the new contract will contain the following features:

- Negotiable summer school salaries. Summer school salaries were not previously negotiated.
- Two personal leave days for teachers. Teachers previously had one personal leave day.
- Increased tuition reimbursement for graduate studies. The district will now pay $20 per semester hour of graduate credit, compared with $15 per semester hour, previously.
- Guidelines for reducing the present teaching staff if the need arises. These guidelines, new to the contract, determine the order in which teachers would be laid off.
- Sick leave bank program. Teachers can donate one unused sick day per year to a common bank, available to all teachers who use up their personal accumulated sick leave.

Rubloff called as witness for former officials

$50,000 from Brown during a meeting at the Lake Shore Holiday Inn. Brown allegedly obtained the cash after Wickes passed a $50,000 check to Rubloff's firm, which issued a check for the same amont to Brown. He then cashed it and allegedly passed it on to Phillips in the hotel room.

FEDERAL PROSECUTORS have not explained in court documents what happened to the alleged $50,000 payoff after its delivery to Phillips.

Rubloff will be asked by the defense attorney why his firm, which was the real estate agent for Wickes, agreed to participate in the payoff and how the $50,000 was accounted for in the firm's records.

Attorney Harvey Silets, who represents Colitz, charged at a Sept. 23 hearing before Marshall that Brown raised "money so that he could pay off people in Wheeling. That's what his modus operandi was, paying people off, bribing officials, which is contrary to the charge" of extortion, Silets said.

The alleged payoff was traced to Phillips after an extensive search by federal agents of telephone records which showed conversations between an office in the Civic Center and Stavros' home.

STAVROS WAS not charged with participation in the shakedown, and federal prosecutors have said they have no evidence against him in the Wickes case.

He pleaded guilty last year to a series of federal extortion, conspiracy and tax charges involving other Wheeling developments and is serving a four-year sentence in federal prison.

Phillips, 40, is a land planner for the County Zoning Board.

Colitz, 59, of Chicago, was a member of the zoning board but resigned after his indictment. He is accused of organizing the alleged Wickes shakedown scheme.

Salt Creek Parks fight for track

In the past, park districts from three communities have attempted unsuccessfully to have the Salt Creek district dissolved and its territory divided among them.

Salt Creek officials say the latest move by the Arlington Heights Park District is an attempt to grab the race track's huge tax revenues which will increase substantially if the proposed stadium is built.

Today's meeting is at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 32 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

program. He said he hoped the concept of a "good" fire department would change from one which puts out a large number of fires to one which does not have to put out any fires.

"Fire departments are geared to putting out fires," he said. "But the people are not protected that way. We have our heads screwed on backward," he said.

"There should be more emphasis on prevention. That way we can do away with the burning of homes, the burning of people and the heartbreaks that go with them," Jackson said.

Randall Schakner

Young man on the go

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

A member of the insurance business million dollar round table by age 25, Randall Schakner works hard . . . and gets ahead. Photographer, teacher, insurance expert, stockbroker, he's had his fingers in many pies.

"I get bored easily. I like the challenge of helping people make money," he explains his success in the world of finance.

As manager of insurance and a registered representative of Bache and Company in Chicago, Schakner buys and sells stocks, bonds, government securities and options for clients.

"A way to do well in this business is to cut a loss to make a profit. And 20 per cent is enough to lose," he advises his clients.

The friendly 31-year-old bachelor from Des Plaines has been on the move since working his way through college as yearbrook photographer. Most recently he founded and now directs activities for New Perspective, a singles organization in the north and northwest suburbs. "For those who have outgrown the bar scene," as Randy puts it.

MOVING FROM Chicago's Belmont Harbor area in New Town, where he started and successfully led one of the city's largest singles groups for three and a half years, Randy settled in the suburbs last year.

"I wanted to settle down in the serenity and security of the suburbs where there are good schools, low tax rates, and with a sound investment in a condominium I purchased," he explained his move.

Once in the suburbs, Schakner soon discovered singles had an even greater need for social outlets.

"It's a terrible thing for singles to be forced into bars to find companionship. Bars in real life setting are totally different from campus bars where students hang out."

Many people won't even try singles groups because of the stigma of losers, leftovers and lonely hearts, Randy pointed out. But the way he tells it, New Perspective is different.

THE PRIVATE, independent, nonprofit group provides social and cultural events in what he describes as healthy, comfortable atmosphere where people can relate to others like themselves. Membership is mostly college graduates ranging from 23-45.

"Our keynote is better programs in better places for better people," Schakner says.

To get New Perspective off the ground, Randy initially invested "a hunk of money" for a block of front row tickets for tennis matches at Lakeshore Tennis Club, Chicago.

He rented center court for a pre-matches cocktail party, inviting Bobby Riggs to give the affair color, then sent out news releases to publicize the event. Tickets cost only $3.50. He got 150 responses.

THOUGH HE PAID nearly half the total cost out of his own pocket, Schakner successfully launched the new project. Doing all the art work himself, he sent out flyers querying people about what they wanted. Dances now draw about 300 singles; speakers, 150.

Randy hires dynamic speakers like Maxine, the Chicago Daily News human relations columnist. In her presentation, Maxine reads letters too controversial or risque to print inviting audience participation. "It was terrific! The audience gave her a standing ovation," Randy recalled enthusiastically.

The executive director of Playboy Foundation spoke another time on liberalizing antiquated sex laws. "This speaker cited stupid laws, describing actual cases. It was zowie stuff!" Schakner said, chuckling.

Dances — very popular with young singles — are held up and down the North Shore: the North Shore Hilton in Skokie, Casa Royale in Des Plaines, Circus Circus in Niles, and The Faces, an ultra mod discotheque in Chicago. Bands vary from rock to musicians who can play any request.

NEW PERSPECTIVE also arranges parties such as champagne get-togethers for members only at no cost, and wine parties preceding sneak movie previews. The organization offers travel packages like a four-day weekend at Las Vegas which includes shows, meals, deluxe hotels, gambling chips, ground transportation and tips for less than the usual airfare alone.

How can Randy do it? "Through my exposure in business, I find opportunities to offer exceptional values in programs and trips," he explained.

Schakner receives no salary for his services, and any funds raised over expenses are donated on a rotating basis to worthy charities such as Northwest Suburban Chapter of American Cancer Society, and Thresholds, half-way houses.

EARNING HIS bachelor's at Northern Illinois University where he was active on campus, Randy went on to Kent College in Chicago to study law. Substitute teaching and selling insurance, he found he could make more money in insurance, so switched careers. He started with John Hancock, staying there five years learning the business. When his company sent him to Dupont to teach stock brokers about insurance, he was turned on to both.

"Stock brokers are oriented to potential capital gins where good insurance people are for coordination and preservation of all assets," he explained.

Schakner's next job was with Merrill Lynch, then to Bache and Company's Dearborn Street offices. "It's a challenge to take advantage of and to profit from opportunity" Randy says of any endeavor.

He endeavors to do much. He addresses church groups, men's clubs and civic organizations, giving sensible suggestions for concerned investors.

He's also a Master Mason, member of Des Plaines Rotary Club and a Republican precinct captain.

For relaxation, Randy flies (he's soloed), cooks and fishes. "I'll go fishing whenever and wherever I can!" he spoke with enthusiasm as he recalled trips to Northern Saskatchewan, Canada, and Reindeer Lake where he threw back 12-inchers. He also likes taking coho from Lake Michigan, and enjoys eating his catches.

For a free listing of New Perspective coming events, those interested may send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to New Perspective, 9462 Bay Colony Drive, Dept. B., Des Plaines, Ill. 60016.

A MAN OF many interests, Randy Schakner of Des Plaines is about ready to buzz off someplace on his motorcycle. He also flies a plane.

Designer talks about 'dressing up'

by GAY PAULEY

Thea Porter, dressmaker to the international set, gets down to the basics about dressing up.

No matter how casual some of today's fashion has become, Miss Porter says, "A woman has to have a dress or two or three she knows she looks good in. Have one for an important party or when you're going somewhere with someone you care about."

It's a matter of looking pretty instead of "tatty."

Said the London designer, "Haven't you noticed? Pretty people are the ones we look at." She might have added: or the bizarre ones.

Miss Porter opposed the American national habit of last-minute buying for a special occasion.

"IT'S DANGEROUS to rush out to get a gown because there's a party tomorrow night and you simply don't have anything to wear," she said. "Your wardrobe should be planned so there is something for a special event, even if the gown is two or three years old. You should be comfortable in it.

"But I think it a good idea once in a while to indulge an impulse. If you see something you like, get it even if you don't need it just now. Sometimes you just long for something. One splurge is good for the soul."

Miss Porter talked during a U.S. visit in which she hoped to line up an American manufacturer to produce in quantity clothes from her designs and fabrics. They would be far less expensive than her one-of-a-kind Porter labels which sell from $400 retail and on up.

HER COUTURE customers can afford her. They include Elizabeth Taylor, Lauren Bacall, Britt Ekland, Julie Christie, Faye Dunaway, Barbra Streisand, some on the perennial best-dressed lists, and titled women in England and on the Continent.

For the photographer, Miss Porter called in a friend, Jane Holzer, hostess and sometimes actress and model, to wear some of her clothes including one dress that she's made in several versions.

It's a long dress with high, Empire waistline, big sleeves and scoop neck. The skirt alone has 12 yards of woven Indian cotton. The Holzer version was in shades of pink and red.

The designer's trademarks are natural fibers — silks, cashmeres, and fine cottons. She has most of them dyed to her specifications and adds trim from her continuing collection of antique handwork.

DRESSMAKER THEA PORTER examines one of her own creations, a long dress worn by friend Jane Holzer, sometime actress and model. The gown has a high Empire waist, huge sleeves and scoop neck. There are 12 yards of the fabric, a woven Indian cotton, in the skirt alone.

ONE OF HER Oriental-style jackets, shown with either pants or skirt, is in black velvet, with palest rose braid made in China in the 19th century. She got it in India.

Miss Porter is a classicist in couture and would stick with her favorites, including separates, for American wearers. "My things don't follow all the changes you read about," she said. "They're good for 10, 20 years."

The designer, who's half-French, half-English, was reared in Damascus where her parents were missionaries. She is an artist and decorator as well as designer, although the concentration now is on clothes produced in her London shop. She has a small studio in Paris also.

Red-haired, tiny and in her 40s, she said she thinks tall and young — "like I really am six feet and only 23." Five feet, yes, but big in her opinions on dresses.

"I'm glad to see gone that bulky, loose look," she said. "I never saw it on anyone but fashion editors anyway."

"I think so many of the rich don't dress up; they've gotten highminded about it. In London, it's this new thing of not showing wealth. British women seem slap-dash . . . they don't care how tatty they look.

"American women are very adventurous. I walk along Fifth Avenue and admire their perfect hair, perfect dress.

"In Paris, the coordinated separates are a uniform . . . the jumper or skirt and stockings dyed to match. Women look like they're straight out of Elle magazine."

Women face challenge of change

Making it in a world moving at jet speed is a paramount role we all must play in today's society.

So says Gwendolyn Newkirk, the new president of the American Home Economics Association.

"Every generation has its problems," Dr.Newkirk replied when asked what challenges today's women face that our mothers and grandmothers did not. "Intensity of them is related to the time perceived, of course.

"I THINK rapidity of change is the thing today with which we all must cope. Think of what we've seen in our lifetime . . . the coming of television, jet and supersonic travel, man stepping on the moon and now it seems as if we'll soon be tourists going to the moon.

"The rapidity of change is social, economic and technical.

"But look at where we also stand in some specific areas — like the problems of the aged.

"We've learned to prolong life, but we've not given the time, taken the steps to deal with the social and economic ills that the aged face. I'm amazed at how inhuman we can be."

SPECIFICALLY, women are going to have to review their priorities, too, she said. There are certain homemaking skills that everyone needs to know, food and sewing skills included. But home economists, reviewing their own roles, "realize we are not restricted to our own area or even our own continent and that many of the decisions we make have an international impact."

Women everywhere must be "more involved in public affairs, in international activities," she said, and "learn to express their views in an articulate and objective manner . . . be aware of social issues, of their key responsibility in economic and business life."

FDA asked to approve silicone for cosmetic use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration has been asked to approve the use of liquid silicone injections for cosmetic purposes, but not for breast enlargements, the Dow Corning Corp. announced.

The fluid would be restricted to use for deformed faces, depressed scars, post-surgical scars, acne repair, wrinkles and other skin conditions, a company spokesman said.

FDA confirmed receiving the formal request for a new drug application, which, if approved, would permit marketing of injectable silicone fluid to qualified doctors.

A Las Vegas plastic surgeon, who says he has seen hundreds of women disfigured from silicone beauty treatments, urged FDA earlier this year to withhold marketing approval of such liquid injections. "It (silicone) doesn't deserve to be let loose on the American public," Charles A. Vinnik told a House investigations subcommittee staff.

DOW CORNING of Midland, Mich., said more than 1,300 patients during the last decade have received treatments for the conditions for which it wants the fluid approved, and no significant adverse side effects have been reported.

In both a letter submitted with its application and in proposed package labeling for the product, Dow Corning said the question of silicone injections to increase breast size is a separate issue that should not be considered by FDA in acting on the request. FDA normally tries to make an initial response to such applications within 180 days of receiving them.

The proposed labeling would carry a warning saying the product "is absolutely contraindicated (not recommended) for breast augmentation because this procedure has not been shown to be safe and effective and injections of this fluid can result in masking subsequent disease of the breast . . "

Market-bought chicken needs immediate care

The homeline
by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I run a supermarket meat section. What drives me up a wall are complaints that I've sold bum chickens. I'm not claiming that every bird we sell is superquality, but the fact is, almost all the squawkers don't know how to take care of fowl at home. I know I speak for every butcher in the area in asking you to give some instructions on handling chickens at home.—Albert G.

You may be overstating the case a little, Albert, but there's no question there is entirely too much casual handling of chickens purchased at stores. The moment a chicken is brought home, the wrapping should be stripped off and the chicken covered loosely with waxed paper and placed in the coldest part of the refrigerator. The giblets should be removed and wrapped loosely, too. Two days is about the safe length of time you can keep it this way before cooking — three at the most.

Dear Dorothy: I wonder if those upset by odors coming from their sink disposers use enough water to get the wastes flowing through. To make sure, they should occasionally fill the sink with two to three inches of water, then remove the stopper. The rush of that much water will usually flush out the pipe. We follow this procedure and have never had to worry about odors. — Susan Paulsen.

Dear Dorothy: The quickest, simplest way to get ballpoint ink stains off vinyl dolls is to spray with ordinary hairspray. It works, too, on vinyl upholstery and even on poly-knit fabrics. It even got red ballpoint ink out of my white polyester knit slacks.—T. Dickey.

All I can think is that you must use an unusually mild ballpoint ink. Hairspray sure hasn't done that well on some of the experiments around here.

(Mrs. Ritz Welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Treat dog right

Overnutrition is as bad for growing dogs as undernutrition, says the New York State Veterinary College. To avoid the problem, the college recommends dry, pelleted dog food instead of all-meat products enriched with calcium. Too much protein and calcium can cause severe skeletal disease the college said.

In this game match point was love

JoAnne Lindblad and David Craig DeBarr met in an interdenominational Bible study class at the University of Illinois, but it was a mutual interest in tennis that led to their dating.

Daughter of the Albin E. Lindblads, Arlington Heights, JoAnne and David, son of Mrs. Ralph Forrest, Decatur, and the late Albert J. DeBarr, were married Aug. 16 in First United Methodist Church of Arlington Heights.

Instead of the traditional recessional the couple left the altar while the guests sang their favorite hymn, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Both young people are students at Eastern Kentucky University where JoAnne is working toward a degree in nursing and David toward a degree in environmental technology. They reside in Richmond, Ky., where David is also employed by Division of Scott Lad Foods in nearby Lexington.

JoAnne, a '73 graduate of Arlington High, also studied at the University of Illinois and her bridegroom at Millikin and the University of Illinois.

Mr. and Mrs. David C. DeBarr

FOR THE 2 p.m. double ring service JoAnne made her own gown of cotton voile appliqued with Alencon lace. A lace tiara held her veil, and she carried miniature carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Sharon Underwood, Wyckoff, N.J., was maid of honor, and Beth Adams, Danville, the groom's sister, Pamela, and Judy Ulrich, Arlington Heights, were bridesmaids. All wore yellow checked gingham gowns with white eyelet bodices, and they carried yellow button mums, daisies, blue delphinium and baby's breath.

Thomas Burtness, Urbana, was best man, and ushers were Fred Starbird, Champaign; Gary Busta, Morton, Ill.; and the couple's brothers, Joseph DeBarr, Decatur, and Erick Lindblad, Big Pine Key, Fla.

A reception for 200 guests was held in the church after which JoAnne and David left for a honeymoon in Michigan.

Herald opinion

Jaffe's school bill would help

For years our school districts have frantically built schoolhouse after schoolhouse to stay ahead of an ever-escalating enrollment. Now, districts are finding themselves in a reverse dilemma — and, believe it or not, it's hurting them in the pocketbook.

A combination of factors — primarily the loss of state aid to public schools brought on by declining enrollment and the present inflated economy — has conspired to put a financial squeeze on local districts. One of our local legislators, State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, is sponsoring a bill to ease this problem, and we support his proposal.

The problem is that enrollment, in the past several years, has started to decline in most elementary districts; high school districts will start to feel the decline in two or three years.

Meanwhile the state, in the interest of equal educational opportunity, has boosted the amount of state money contributed to districts to approximately 40-45 per cent of the total school budget (local taxes and federal funds contribute the rest). The more students enrolled, the more state aid a district tends to receive.

This system works so effectively that, as soon as enrollment begins to decline, a district loses a percentage of that state aid contribution. In a district in which the local contribution has been trimmed, and teacher salaries and fixed expenses are rising rapidly, financial ruin becomes a reality to school officials and board members.

The problem is compounded by the fact that most small and middle-sized elementary districts simply cannot cut costs or reduce staff quickly enough to compensate for the slash in state aid. The districts are finding themselves increasingly in a financial squeeze from which they cannot escape.

Jaffe's bill (HB 3126) represents a partial remedy. Co-sponsored by Glenn Schneider, D-Wheaton, chairman of the House Education subcommittee on school finance, the bill would allow districts to base state aid on average daily attendance over the past three years, rather than merely on the past school year, as is the case now. For districts with declining enrollment, this would mean state aid would not be sharply cut, and this would ease these districts out of their financial dilemmas.

Other long-range remedies may be needed, such as allowing districts to hold referenda to boost taxes above the present state-imposed limit. But Jaffe's bill is a practical first step towards easing the immediate financial crisis, and we believe it's the proposal which should be passed as soon as possible by the General Assembly.

Village board backed

Lawsuits against Wheeling, filed by three developers whose projects were rejected and by two fired village employes, are all aimed at the new Wheeling village board.

While trying to provide leadership for the community, the board is not being intimidated by these threats. We commend this determination by the board not to have the village run by outsiders.

Board members, however, did leave themselves open for the suits after an out-of-court settlement with the developer on an earlier suit. They should be prepared in these cases to stand fast and let the courts decide the outcome.

As for the suit by the former village attorney and police chief, the board again should let the courts decide. In both cases, the village is on good grounds to face a showdown in court.

We continue to support the board in its quest to let the people of Wheeling speak for themselves through their elected representatives.

Disclosure stand 'stupid'

The Herald's editorial suggestion that Buffalo Grove require income and assets disclosure of all persons serving on village committees is long on cynicism and short on logic.

Many worthwhile activities are carried on in the village because of the dedication of residents who freely give of their time and talent. A good case in point is the blood donor program, whose appointed members handle the complex arrangements for blood drives which have already accomplished so much good. There are many similar groups functioning in such areas as flood control, civil defense, the environment, etc.

The Herald would have the village tell these people that, if they wish to continue this sort of public service, they must now make public their income and assets. This suggestion is an insult to the people who staff these various committees and commissions. In effect, it is tantamount to saying to them: we don't trust you, prove that you are honest.

IRONICALLY, such a program, if implemented, would likely have no impact whatever upon the sort of individual who might be tempted to act dishonestly. That sort of conduct is already subject to statutory criminal penalties. Does the Herald seriously believe that a municipal disclosure ordinance would deter such a person — or that an individual who has accepted a bribe would then turn around and report it as income in a village "ethics" statement?

If implemented, however, the suggestion would have one very real effect: it would drive out of public service virtually everyone who has heretofore been serving the village as an appointee. People value too highly their right to a reasonable degree of privacy to put up with nonsense of the sort The Herald is here proposing. Even as things stand presently, only a relatively small number of qualified people are willing and able to make the sacrifice in time required for this sort of public service.

The stupidity of the Paddock editors never ceases to amaze me.

Dist. 59 tax vote supported

Dist. 59 is facing another task of people voting for a tax referendum come Sept. 27. As a concerned parent, mother of several children in Dist. 59's fine schools, I wish to express my feelings about this issue.

Last year our school had children waiting to get into the learning disability program. The line was so long some children could not get the high advantages of this excellent program. We are not the ones hurt by non-support of this referendum it will be to the disadvantage of our children.

Dr. Bardwell should be commended for his renewed position within the district as superintendent. We should support him and our district so that our children get the "very best" our schools have to offer. When you go to the polls Sept. 27, please think carefully before voting no.

P.S. Thank you, teachers, for being in your classrooms on the first day of school. We mothers sure appreciate it!

'Free ride not sought'

Your editorial entitled "Let's Protect 'Old' Residents" was most disturbing in that it was grossly inaccurate concerning the following points:

•. For almost 1½ years, both the residents in the northern subdivisions and the village officials have been working together to determine if there is both mutual benefit and interest. This is not moving rapidly.

2. The 13-point resolution was not a set of "conditions" for annexation but a clarification by the village trustees of the legal facts of annexation along with an indication of their willingness to support the residents in dealing with their local problems. This support being similar to what has been provided to current areas of the village.

3. The residents of the northern subdivisions are not looking for a "free ride" but have always recognized the need for paying their fair share for services provided. If you had done your homework, you would have determined that the cost of services provided to the areas will be more than offset by the additional revenues these areas will provide. These additional revenues will be from real estate taxes, motor fuel taxes, state and federal revenue sharing and sales taxes. All of the aforementioned taxes are currently being paid by the unincorporated residents; however, they receive little, if any, direct benefit since they do not have a local government that receives and spends those funds.

Rather than write inaccurate, inflammatory articles, why not do your community a service and take the time to get the facts. Make a determination of the costs of the services and the total revenues that these areas will generate, and then publish an article that presents an objective evaluation that both village residents and unincorporated residents can use to make a rational decision on the costs and benefits of annexation.

Fabish stand criticized

This is to reply to the article which appeared in the Buffalo Grove Herald on Sept. 4, about the "Fabish-Winter Feud."

Mr. Fabish is the elected representative of the people of Buffalo Grove, it is his responsibility to look out for the good of the many, not the few. It is therefore amazing to me that he would consider, let alone criticize, the decision of Chief Winter not to allow the fire equipment to stand outside. Our equipment has many technical facets unknown to the non-firefighter. Each piece of apparatus is pre-set to a specific operation upon response to an alarm. One switch thrown or one lever moved could cause chaos and worse, loss of property and life in an emergency situation.

It also seems that Mr. Fabish was willing to deprive the residents of Buffalo Grove of their proper police protection by detailing police officers from their regular patrol duties to guard duties.

The reference being made to hiring a suspended patrolman fails to mention that the officer involved has previously been a full-time member of a local fire department and a long-time member of the Buffalo Grove Fire Department. He was hired to replace a full-time Buffalo Grove firefighter who was on leave. Chief Winter saw his responsibility to the residents and hired a highly qualified temporary replacement.

I feel the flat statement that Chief Winter would not be considered for the position of municipal fire chief is to arbitrarily deprive the villagers of the qualifications, ability, and experience of a dedicated man.

Citizen praised for assisting hurt pedestrian

(Following is a letter addressed to Robert L. Schulte of Arlington Heights with a copy to The Herald.)

Dear Mr. Schulte:

On Aug. 23 at 623 Northwest Highway in Park Ridge you took the trouble to act as the Good Samaritan in comforting an injured pedestrian. A well-working democracy must rely upon its citizens to voluntarily help govern themselves. Your action was democracy at its best. Our officers and myself greatly appreciate your considerate kindness, because without people like you, we could not function.

AMERICAN REVOLUTION BICENTENNIAL 1776-1976

Dateline 1775

(by United Press International)

LONDON, Sept. 8 — King George decided that Adm. Graves would have to be replaced as commander of the British naval forces in the colonies. Graves was accused of lethargy in the face of rebel attacks on His Majesty's ships and the King concluded the command could "no longer be left in improper hands."

Two events had towering foreign policy impact

by WILBUR G. LANDREY
UPI Foreign Editor

Two major diplomatic events of the past week have important implications for the United States at home and abroad, bearing on such basic considerations as Middle East peace, detente with Russia, relations with the underdeveloped world and whether the country can have a coherent foreign policy at all.

One of the developments is the agreement which Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger negotiated for a further Israeli withdrawal from Egyptian territory in the Sinai desert. It has a price tag of about $3 billion and requires Americans to be stationed in the Sinai passes to help monitor it.

The other development is the ambitious American plan presented to the United Nations for future cooperation between the industrialized nations of the northern hemisphere and the underdeveloped world of the southern hemisphere. Again the price will be high.

ALREADY THIS year, Congress, rightly or wrongly, has turned down aid to Vietnam and Cambodia, forced a cutoff in aid to Turkey and at least postponed an arms deal with Jordan — all blows that landed with a thud on American foreign policy.

Congressional candidates for president, not to speak of organized labor, have sniped at various aspects of detente, including the recent deal to sell more grain to Russia.

In the end, the strong chances are that Congress will approve Kissinger's Sinai accord for the same reason that Israel reluctantly went along with it and Egypt also took the considerable risk of signing: nobody has a better alternative short of war.

But a number of Congressional critics have sounded doubt, first about the dispatch of American civilians to help monitor the accord, and secondly about the money it will cost.

Stationing 200 or so American civilians in the Sinai passes cannot really be compared to the beginning of American involvement in Korea or Vietnam — or so it will be argued. Israeli Prime Minster Itzhak Rabin went out of his way to advise Congress that the Americans would not be involved in any hostilities.

IN THE UNLIKELY event that Congress refused to approve the dispatch of the Americans, the agreement could be off. And there would almost certainly be a constitutional crisis in Washington over who really runs the foreign policy of the United States.

As for the money involved, Israel is supposed to get the bulk of it. Some $2.3 billion has been asked, and most of it probably will be voted. There is strong sympathy for Israel in Congress, the Israeli lobby is strong, and again, there is no alternative. But there will be a lot of questions asked.

The basic thing about Kissinger's interim Sinai agreement — an undoubted interim American diplomatic success — is that it only buys time. The hard problems necessary for a real peace are yet to be solved. They are the future of the Palestinians, the Israeli-occupied Syrian Golan Heights, the Israel-occupied West Bank of the Jordan and Jerusalem.

High American officials expect Russia to try to undercut the interim settlement. But they do not anticipate that the Russians will go so far as to risk detente.

THE WEEK'S SECOND major foreign policy development, the American proposals to the special session of the United Nations in New York, was the result of administration review of American policies toward the developing world.

Since the 1973 oil embargo, it has become increasingly evident that beyond the immediate questions of relations with Russia and China towers the further great question of whether there is going to be confrontation or cooperation between the western and developing worlds.

It could be the overwhelming question of this last quarter century.

The proposals put forward in Kissinger's name will require American money and trade concessions which in turn will need Congressional approval.

That will provide another test of whether the administration and Congress can work together enough to have a consistent American foreign policy.

Venture stores see strong selling season

A "strong fall and holiday selling season" is predicted by Standly J. Goodman, chief executive of The May Department Stores Co., the nation's second largest department store chain.

May Co. owns the Venture discount chain which opened three Chicago area stores this year, including one at Dempster Street and Elmhurst Road, Mount Prospect.

Goodman said the company "performed well relative to the retail industry as a whole during the recession" and credited "our unsinkable customer, who has not been daunted by a tidal wave of pessimistic news developments in the last two years."

But he added a note of caution of his own for the long-range economic outlook: "We see reason for concern in the signs that the country may be moving into another period of rising interest costs and higher rates of inflation."

The May Co. has announced plans for capital expenditures fo $70 to $80 million a year for the next two years and plans two additional Venture stores in the Chicago area in 1976 and two more in 1977.

Rocky Mounain fever easier to treat now

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

I would like to inquire about the vaccination for Rocky Mountain Spotted (Tick) Fever. Some doctors do not keep the serum and explain that it is too expensive to keep on hand and that the shot may have serious side effects. Other doctors give the shots and recommend them. Do you think these shots are worthwhile? Ticks are very bad in this part of the country, especially in the grass and woods.

Also tell me a little about the fever and some early signs to look for if my children get sick. What can be done if a child gets this fever?

You are almost out of the woods this year. The disease usually strikes between the first of May and the last of September.

The reason the vaccine is not used so much any more is that it is now much easier to treat Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever than it used to be. The important things is to suspect the disease early and start treatment early. Several antibiotics (tetracyclines and chloramphenicol) are very effective in treating the disease.

The name of the disease is a misnomer. It was first found in the United States in Montana, and for years people thought it was indigenous to the Rocky Mountain area, which proved to be false. It is found quite frequently along the Atlantic Seaboard. It affects about 300 people a year.

The disease itself starts two days to two weeks after being bitten by a tick. The illness may begin like measles. However, measles are less common in the months when Rocky Mountain Fever is most likely to occur. There may be associated pain in the bones, joints, and muscles, but that won't help make a diagnosis. By the second day the fever is commonly 40 to 40.5 degrees C (104 to 105 degrees F.).

In two to six days a rash develops and may progress to involve large areas of the skin. The brain may be involved with delirium and even coma. The real death-dealing complications, though, are involvement of the lungs and heart.

The fever is usually over in about two weeks, but it may take a month or two for the patient to fully recover.

The ticks transmit an organism half way between bacteria and viruses, called rickettsia. An infected tick will transmit the disease to its own offsprings. The rickettsial illness affects small mammals, including dogs.

When the tick gets on man it will inoculate him with the rickettsia. The tick cannot transmit the infection without being attached for several hours. So, if you inspect your person twice a day for ticks and remove them, you will go a long way toward protecting yourself.

Regardless of what you have read about how to burn off a tick, the only way to remove the tick is to use a pair of small forceps and grasp the tick by the head and chest. Pull gently until he releases his jaws. If you kill the tick while in place with a lighted cigarette or kerosene, the tick may expel a lot of rickettsia into the person during the death throes.

Also, you can help by keeping the family dog free of ticks with an effective collar, and you can even use clothing impregnated with tick repellents.

Politics well satirized in 'Nashville'

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON — Hollywood's efforts to depict American politics usually come off as cartoons — caricatures of people and issues that eliminate the soft edges and gray tones of real life.

This distortion may be in the nature of film drama and politicians perhaps should be grateful that they are being elevated to the status of motion picture stars rather than comic strip characters. But at the same time, it seems reasonable to wish that film directors who undertake to satirize politics at least do it well.

There is now a movie out that does it well. "Nashville," Robert Altman's self-described "metaphor of America," provides a surrealistic view of a presidential campaign in the making that is a devasting commentary on where we are in choosing our national leaders.

TO SOME EXTENT, the movie is "about" the presidential campaign of Hal Phillip Wlker, and it opens with a shot of a small van emerging from a nondescript commercial garage, loudspeaker blaring. For the rest of the movie, the truck scoots about the city, spouting complaints about the state of the world and offering such solutions as kicking all lawyers out of government and adopting a new national anthem.

Through it all, the audience never sees who is behind the wheel of the van or even who opens and shuts the garage door as the robotic little voice on wheels returns to its lair. It does see Walker's supporters — sweet-faced Barbie Doll girls festooning everything with bumper stickers and a CREEP-type advance man wheeling, dealing and whipsawing country music stars into helping his faceless candidate.

When The Man finally does arrive on the scene, he remains a disembodied voice in a motorcade of sleek limousines, which roars away in fright when the movie's climactic shooting occurs.

Ther may be some who see in the Walker campaign a parody of Richard Nixon's 1972 surrogate campaign, but Altman has worked on a broader canvas. In "Nashville" he has produced a symbol of all the mechanistic, dehumanizing aspects of big time political campaigns today and pointed to one possible reason that so many Americans tell pollsters that they just don't give a damn about politics and candidates.

IN ONE WAY, politics is as much a business as making cars. The consumer will buy what he is offered if it seems to be doing the job and may even be persuaded to switch brands by clever sales pitches and design gimmicks. But the consumer will turn away from the product when it no longer is relavant to his needs and no amount of high-powered promotion will sell it.

Altman seems to be saying that American politics has reached that point of diminishing returns. Efficient campaign organization and fancy image packaging are beginning to lose their meaning. Candidates have become nothing but mechanically recorded voices, eternally jabbering and saying nothing.

There are no "solutions" in the movie. Altman has tried, with the license given the caricaturist, to show how American politics looks to the American people. If his eye is good, some changes obviously need to be made. But that will require more than a three hour motion picture to accomplish.

West Pennsylvania to give U.S. costly cultural vessel

by RUDY CERNKOVIC

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Western Pennsylvania's Bicentennial gift to America will be a million-dollar cultural vessel that will take music, art, poetry, dance, theater, painting and crafts to Chicago and 75 other cities next spring.

Theodore Hazlett, president of the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust, says, "The tour will bring enrichment to small towns that normally never would have access to any type of cultural enrichment."

"It is the most imaginative of all the ideas that we have reviewed for celebrating the nation's Bicentennial," he said.

Robert Austin Bourdreau, founder of the American Wind Symphony orchestra, has planned the program. A self-propelled vessel now under construction at Norfolk, Va., will begin its six-month odyssey April 30, 1976 at Gulfport-Biloxi-Ocena Springs, Miss., and end in Brownsville, Tex.

THE CONCEPT of the floating center for arts is a dream of Boudreau's that began eight years ago. In 1957 he founded his American Wind Symphony, a wind, brass and percussion assemblage, in Pittsburgh.

Music lovers along inland waterways of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Connecticut and New York applauded Boudreau's offerings.

Boudreau now will present his special brand of music to broader horizons. After the Bicentennial tour opens in Mississippi, the vessel will sail through eastern intracoastal waterways to Canada, then by the way of the Great Lakes to the Mississippi and throughout inland waterways before ending the tour at Brownsville.

The vessel, designed by the late Louis Kahn, a world renowned architect, will be 195 feet long, 35 feet wide and will contain a 200-seat theater and two art galleries. One gallery will display painting and sculpture and the other is for crafts.

At the time of his death in 1974, Kahn had been designing the John F. Kennedy Memorial to be constructed in Washington.

HE ALSO DESIGNED the Paul Mellon Center for British Studies at Yale and the Jonas Salk Institute, La Jolla, Calif.

During the 25,000-mile trip the orchestra will not appear in stadiums or symphony halls. Instead, its space will be created by sky, land and water. The concerts will be highlighted by dance and fireworks displays, theater presentations and painting and sculpture exhibitions.

After the Biloxi opening, the floating center will head through Florida, Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia, Maryland and Delaware. In May, the vessel will dock at Philadelphia for a special performance for the convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Then on to New Jersy, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Then the floating center leaves the United States for a voyage to Canada where residents of Montreal, Kingston and Toronto will share the excitement of the Bicentennial of their North American neighbors.

Back to the United States for visits to Hoio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois Missouri, Kentucky, Indiana, West Virginia and on to Texas.

Hazlett spearheaded a drive for construction of the floating center by approaching Pittsburgh's major industries and foundations for contributions.

THE VESSEL AND the tour will be financed by a dozen Pittsburgh business corporations. U. S. Steel, Jones & Laughlin Steel, Mellon Bank, Westinghouse Corporation, Rockwell International, PPG Industries, Alcoa, Sears Roebuck, Allegheny Ludlum, Koppers, Dravo, Pittsburgh National Bank, Mine Safety Appliance, Equitable Gas and Eastern Associated Coal Corp., have pledged more than $300,000, towards the cost.

Other contributions include $200,000 from the Laurel, Benedum, Richard King Mellon, Buhl, Heinz, Hillman, Scaife and A. W. Mellon Foundations. The Bicentennial Commission of Pennsylvania donated $150,000 and the Federal Bicentennial Commission contributed $45,000.

Arlington, Palatine post wins in debuts

Thrilling finish for Cardinals

by DOUG PALM

"Don't get his dander up."

That seemingly innocent warning voiced by one press box observer Saturday afternoon proved slightly more ominous than he, or anyone around him, thought possible.

Perhaps the outcome would have been different had they left Matt Shaughnessy alone. Instead, a late-game incident seemed to spur the Arlington quarterback to peak efficiency in a last-ditch drive to victory as the Cardinals dumped Homewood-Flossmoor, 28-25, in the season debut.

Trailing 25-21 for the first time with only 1:23 remaining, the Cardinals, who had come up with the big play all afternoon, stared Dame Defeat squarely in the eye and came away an unflinching victor in a thrilling opener.

From the opening kickoff to the final waning seconds, there was hardly a dull moment. An obviously elated but realistic Chuck Haines put things in proper perspective as both head coach and spokesman for the Cards when he said, "We'll take the victory no matter what, but there will be improvement."

Arlington stunned the sun-baked crowd on the opening play as deep back Steve Leonhard, a versatile performer all afternoon, took the kickoff and returned it 90 yards for the touchdown. His first of four successful extra points gave Arlington a 7-0 lead.

Homewood wasted little time in fighting back. On the first play from scrimmage Rich Duffy caught the Cards on a pattern to his right end Scott Teising for 72-yard scoring bomb.

"We weren't anticipating a passing game," remarked Haines. "it was almost a complete turnaround from last year when they had that bruising running attack. One thing is for certain. Our pass defense will improve, as I have an assistant coach who won't have it any other way."

Duffy completed 11 passes for 317 yards and four touchdowns for the host Vikings.

The Cards capitalized on good field position to increase their lead to 14-6 on a third and goal power drive by Mike Schell. The key play in this sequence was a sprint-out pass from Shaughnessy to Wayne Eisenhuth on fourth and four at the H-F 18.

After Duffy had staggered the Cardinals with a second tally, the visitors responded with some lightning of their own, namely Phil Dinielli. The Arlington halfback shot off left tackle and cut to the middle for a 64-yard scoring scamper and a 21-12 Card lead at halftime.

Duffy got the utmost out of a talented group of receivers, and a bit of good fortune from two passes which were caught despite being tipped by

LOOKING FOR HIS primary target is quarterback Wayne Jackson of Hoffman Estates. Giving him protection is Joe Parille as Palatine's Joe Purri (6) rushes. Pirates surge to tip Hoffman

by PAUL LOGAN

Centennial decals and patches were proudly worn by the Palatine Pirates as they ran onto the Hoffman Estates High School football field Saturday afternoon.

But when the Pirates trudged off at halftime, some fans had to wonder which team's school was celebrating its 100th birthday and which was playing its varsity game ever. Arv Herstedt, Palatine's head coach, was one of them.

"We were playing like a new school instead of an old school with tradition," said Hersted after the game. "We weren't aggressive."

The veteran Pirates made three turnovers, only two first downs and had just 31 yards in total offense in the first half.

The Hoffman Hawks, on the other hand, had played a super first half and led 14-0.But early in the second half, the game turned in Palatine's favor. Both coaches called it the key to the outcome — a 21-14 comeback victory for Palatine.

On the third play of the second half, Bill DiPuma intercepted Pirate quarterback Mark McCostlin. DiPuma went some 50 yards for the touchdown, but a clip at the goal line ruined the Hawks' hope of icing the game.

Palatine's defense stopped the Hawks just short of a first down. Then the Pirate offense staged a 93-yard drive — mostly on runs by running back Jim Popp — for the first of three touchdowns by Popp. He enjoyed a great second half, finishing with 28 carries and 126 yards.

Popp scored from the three and McCostlin hit John Bals to make it 14-8.

Just before the end of the third quarter, line-backer Dave Hanetho caught punter Kevin Stalley trying to run for the first down. It ended a drive at the Pirates' 45.

The Pirates' second score was set up after a 15-yard punt by Hoffman. They marched from the Hoffman 39 with Popp scoring from the three. Finaly's kick make it 15-14 early in the final period.

Pirate co-captain Brian Dewyze set up the last score when he stripped the ball from Jackson and recovered it at the Hoffman 26. After a 20-yard run by McCostlin on a sweep with excellent blocks by Jeff Nelson and Jeff Williams, Popp ran in from the three again.

Palatine's Jim Smearman recovered another Hoffman fumble to snuff out the Hawks' last chance to win.

The turnaround in the second half ruined the Hawks' debut. Jackson and Stalley had teamed up for two touchdown passes in seven and 42 yards in the first half. A 27-yarder was called back because of an illegal receiver down field.

"They were wearing us down (in the second half)," said Hoffman coach Bill Gourley, referring to the weight difference of the two teams. "That's why we've got to score."

The two TDs called back proved too costly. Another key factor was Palatine's switching from a "faster type of game" (option plays) "to power stuff in the second half," said Herstedt.

The Pirates, thanks mainly to Popp's hard running, rulled up most of their 201 yards rushing after intermission.

"It feels nice to get started right — with a win," said Herstedt.

However, it left the Hawks with their first loss in three years. But they proved they could play with the big boys.

Orantes wins spectacular upset!

by MIKE HUGHES
UPI Exec. Sports Writer

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI)—Manuel Orantes, a Spaniard of monumental patience, perpetrated one of the biggest upsets in U.S. open history Sunday when he softballed defending champion Jimmy Connors into submission, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3, before 15,669 persons who watched in almost pure disbelief.

For Connors, who gained his world No. 1 ranking by winning the Australian, Wimbledon and U.S. titles in 1974, the defeat was particularly hard to take because it meant that he had lost all three championships this year after gaining the finals.

Connors gained a measure of consolation later when he teamed with Ilie Nastase to win the men's doubles title, 6-4, 7-6, over Marty Riessen and Tom Okker.

In Sunday women's doubles here, Margaret Court of Australia and Britisher Virginia Wade beat defending champions Billie Jean King and Rosie Casals, 7-5, 2-6, 7-6. Court and Wade were also doubles winners in 1969 and 1973.

The 26-year-old Orantes was given little chance to unseat Connors because he had never won a previous major championship and did not leave the court Saturday until just before midnight.

Orantes gained the finals after an epic five set semifinal victory over Guillermo Vilas of Argentina. Down 2-1 in sets and 5-love in the fourth set, Orantes was forced to serve five match points against Vilas. It was thought he could not perform a second miracle against Connors just 12 hours later.

Yet, that's exactly what happened.

Connors said after the match, "He was unbelievable. I did not believe a man could hit passing shots for an entire match the way he did, but unfortunately for me, he did."

The 5-foot-9½ Spaniard, a stocky 160 pounds, won the championship in the style of Chrissie Evert, Connors' ex-girlfriend: He never left the baseline.

Orantes passed Connors as Jimmy tried to reach the net, and when Connors was at midcourt, he would find Orantes' lob too much to handle.

Now, two Spaniards have won the U.S. Open men's singles title. Manuel Santana succeeded in 1965.

On receiving his winning check of $25,000 plus an automobile, Orantes told the crowd, "It is a great honor to have my name inscribed on the U.S. Open trophy.

"To win this tournament, you have to be lucky and play well. I played well and I was lucky, especially last night in my semifinal against Guillermo (Vilas)."

The little man, who rested much of last winter because of back ailments, defeated Connors for only the second time in eight attempts and ran his season money winnings to $130,146.

It was a classic match. Orantes employed deft dinks, chips, drop shots and his devastating lob to brunt Connors' power game. Each time Connors got to the net, a passing shot would whistle by his ears.

Connors, who has won six tournaments of minor prestige this season, received $12,000 for his loss and totals $521,047 on the year, most of that from challenge match victories over John Newcombe and Rod Laver in Las Vegas.

They yelled for Orantes

FOREST HILLS (UPI) — The ball landed in the corner and the U.S. Open tennis title belonged to Manuel Orantes.

He turned swiftly towards his wife, Virginia, dipped to his knee for a moment, then raced to the net to shake the hand of his deposed foe, Jimmy Connors. He turned and dashed to the courtside box to embrace his wife — who said when her husband was hopelessly behind Guillermo Vilas Saturday night, "I did not think Manuel could win."

By this time they were virtually mobbed by photographers and celebrating Spanish fans who had poured onto the court.

He struggled back for the award ceremonies while a rolling crescendo from the Spanish community in the stadium rocked the place with chants of "Orantes! Orantes! Orantes! Orantes!"

Cross country coaches see hope

by ART MUGALIAN

What do Bill Mohrmann, Jim Swift, Jim Nagel and Ron Menely have in common?

Answer: they're all Mid-Suburban League cross country coaches who saw a glimmer of hope in their teams' varied performances Saturday.

And what about Darryl Robinson, Ben Sanchez, Mark Tomasik, and John Filoso?

That quartet of harriers gave notice that they will be tough to run against in 1975.

It was the first big weekend of cross country meets, and while most teams are still rounding into shape, several coaches got that all-important first look.

Forest View's Mohrmann got good efforts from Tim Blechl (6th), Steve Hilliger (7th), Curt Long (9th), and Fred Grunewald (10th) as the Falcons defeated Conant, St. Lawrence, and Brother Rice in a four-way duel. Robinson, a dazzling junior, led the pack around the three-mile course in 15:20, affirming his position as one of the area's harriers.

But Mohrmann was especially pleased because his team won despite poor performances from Steve Schellenberger and Mike Ham, who are supposed to be the Falcons' two and three runners.

Conant's Jeff Krautwurst and Dan Cummings were fourth and fifth.

Nagel's Wheeling Wildcats split a pair of double duels, beating Lake Forest but losing to Loyola. Sanchez, a smooth-running sophomore, grabbed his second win in as many outings, trekking three miles in 15:47. Teammates Darryl Stillson and Kevin Lucas ran seventh and eighth for Nagel's promising, sophomore-laden team.

Swift's Hoffman Estates squad went up against Maine East's powerhouse, including Tomasik, who came close to a course record at East with a 13:45. The Demons won 15-46 over Swift's Hawks, but Hoffman beat Gordon Tech, Waukegan East and Waukegan West.

"Even though we got beat, I'm still pretty optimistic," said Swift. "We were about eight seconds behind Maine East's pack, and they're supposed to be one of the top three in the state."

Though they failed to break into the Demons' top five, Hawks Dave Porzel (9th), Kevin Rooney (10th), Steve Lind (11th), Bill Joyce (12th), and Sam Cox (13th) finished with a 16-second spread.

Menely's defending sectional champion Fremd Vikings took a disappointing fifth place at the Crystal Lake Invite, finishing behind fourth-place Maine West and the winner, Woodstock. But Menely was satisfied that his harriers learned an important lesson on losing.

Filosa, a junior who finished 11th in the state meet a year ago, took second at Crystal Lake behind Tom Whyte of DeKalb. Dan Tischler, another junior, was 14th and senior Dean Elleman was 23rd.

TOM WATSON displays the trophy he won at Sunday's World Series of Golf. He also pocketed $50,000.

Watson wins WSG; Cincy clinches West

British Open champion Tom Watson, failing to fold coming down the stretch, shot a one-over-par 71 Sunday to rule the 14th annual World Series of Golf and capture its $50,000 first prize.

The 26-year-old Watson finished with a 36-hole score of 140, two shots in front of Masters and PGA champion Jack Nicklaus, five ahead of Canadian Open winner Tom Weiskopf and seven better than U.S. Open winner Lou Graham.

Nicklaus was seeking his fifth World Series win in 10 appearances but settled for his sixth runner-up finish after shooting a final rounds 70 at Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio.

Weiskopf also shot 70 and Graham had 71.

Watson made his victory on the 14th and 15th holes, each time blasting out of sand to salvage pars and thwart the charging Nicklaus.

Sunday's other biggest winners were the Cincinnati Reds who clinched their National League West title with an 8-4 victory over San Francisco.

The Reds' triumph, coupled with Atlanta's victory over Los Angeles, gave Cincinnati a 20½ game bulge with 20 games remaining ..It marks the earliest title clinching in National League history, beating by one day the previous record held by the 1955 Brooklyn Dodgers.

ELSEWHERE IN ATHLETICS:

Major college football's first weekend concludes tonight with nationally televised Missouri at Alabama (Channel 7, 8:05 p.m.). They last met in the 1968 Gator Bowl and Missouri cruised, 35-10.

Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, met with Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau to hopefully settle a row over television rights which threatens to black out coverage of the 1976 Games for all countries outside North America.

Veteran Hubert Green fired a six-under-par 64 for a Southern Open victory and 264 tournament mark. Carol Mann won her fourth tourney this season, the Dallas Women's Open, with a 54-hole total 208.

Teenage tennis star Martina Navratilova, 18, announced her defection from Czechoslovakia to the United States during a press gathering at Forest Hills.

Switzerland's Clay Regazzoni won the 46th Italian Formula Grand Prix and Ferrari teammate Niki Lauda of Austria captured the 1975 world drivers' title by finishing third behind Brazil's Emerson Fittipaldi.

Steelers' quarterback Terry Bradshaw was hospitalized in Pittsburgh for tests and observation to determine his generally rundown condition.

Chicago's going-noplace baseball teams split yesterday. The Cubs won at Philadelphia, 6-4, scoring all their runs in the sixth when Philly committed four errors. And the White Sox were blasted by Minnesota, 9-1.

Super-Vikes fell short in 1974

St. Laurence showcase of 5A?

Mike Klein
Sports Columnist

When time stood still, before the IHSA headquarters was spirited from convenient Chicago to isolated Bloomington to signal a new era of long distance phone calls, there wasn't any state football playoff series.

We were an unchampioned people, unable to say whose youngsters had the most talent in punt, pass and kick. Or, for that matter, clip, hold and pile on.

Then our State fathers waved their Wand of Profit and produced the football championship series, inaugurated last year.

Glenbrook North from nearby Northbrook earned our state's first Big School football title, edging East St. Louis, 19-13, in overtime.

So the Spartans of Harold Samorian have their trophy. And deservedly so.

But many will not soon forget the St. Laurence Vikings of bee-uuu-teeful downtown Burbank, ala Chicago's scenic southside neighbor.

The Vikings were nobody to push around.

"If we'd been there (at state finals), we'd have won it," Vikings' coach Tom Kavanagh said Friday morning. "I didn't see any teams we couldn't beat."

St. Laurence never showed in IHSA playoffs because the Vikes dropped their Catholic League regular season finale, 29-22, against Brother Rice.

The Vikes assembled an 8-1 Catholic League season. But Gordon Tech was perfect in nine tries, none against St. Laurence.

So Gordon Tech received the IHSA berth and advanced to semifinals where East St. Louis bloodied the Rams, 46-0.

All St. Laurence did back home was gain its third straight Chicago City Championship. First, the Vikes toppled St. Rita (20-0), Brother Rice (38-6) and Gordon Tech (36-18) in Catholic League playoffs.

Then Kavanagh's men disgraced Chicago Vocational, 34-0, in the Soldier Field based Mayor's Bowl.

That finished off the Vikes' 12-1 season in which opponents were humiliated by a composite 406-136.

Yes, St. Laurence was something else.

Kavanagh says even then he wasn't too disjointed at missing IHSA playoffs. Some final weekend upsets produced numerous conference co-champions, leaving St. Laurence without one of 16 playoff series berths.
can you call a city championship a tainted success?"

It is a remarkable record wrought by Kavanagh these past five seasons. Coming from Bob Spoo's Loyola Academy staff, Kavanaugh inherited a program which won nothing and lost eight games in 1969.

Talk about flipping the coin for profit, here's the verdict at St. Laurence under Kavanagh:

• • Five straight winning seasons and a total 44-11-4 record before their Sunday afternoon opener with Gordon Tech.

• • Catholic League playoff appearances in four of Kavanagh's five seasons, including his first when the Vikes were 5-4-1.

• • Victories in 10 consecutive playoff games.

• • A record three straight Mayor's Bowl wins over Chicago Vocational last year, Wendell Phillips (40-24 in 1973) and Taft (26-6 in 1972).

•• And such incredible motivation that 140 young men reported for varsity practice this year.

All of that, at a school which had never been in Catholic League playoffs before Kavanagh's arrival.

"We're producing first-rate, top-notch football teams," said Kavanagh. "We consider last season a complete success," Kavanagh said. "How nagh, which surprises none of the people who've been swallowed by his machine recently.

"Also," Kavanagh quickly added, "excellent students. Of 28 seniors last year, 26 were in the top half of their graduating class.

"We push real hard in every respect, in classroom work, out of the classroom and on the field," Kavanagh explained. "I don't think you can be a good guy on the football field and a hot dog in the classroom."

His largest disappointment in five seasons has been failure to reach 1971 playoffs despite a 6-4 record which might have read 8-2. "We were two plays away," said Kavanagh.

Those were a 90-yard pass interception return against Brother Rice plus a blocked punt against Loyola, both plays producing St. Laurence defeats.

The Vikes lost three games by a composite 10 points during that season, Kavanagh's second. But they're 33-3-3 over the past three campaigns.

So how come?

Well, there was quarterback Steve Mally in 1972 whom Kavanagh terms "probably the greatest athlete I've ever seen close-up."

Look for Mally tonight in Missouri's backfield when Mizzou plays Alabama on national television.

But it's mostly balance, not single player brilliance which oils the St. Laurence program. Fifteen players from last year's team received major college football scholarships.

The program now produces good seniors every year. Kavanagh has lost just one staff member in five years. George Badke left St. Laurence for head coaching duties at Fenwick this season.

And the men surrounding Kavanagh understand Chicago football. There are Mike O'Neil and Mark Walsh (both of Leo) plus Wally Sebuck (DeLa Salle) and Bob Fabrezio (Lane Tech).

Also, there are those 140 anxious bodies who report for sweat and glory. With equal numbers, perhaps Tiny Tim would have a great program, too.

The Vikings accomplished everything but an IHSA state championship last year. That trophy still belongs to Glenbrook North . . . whose Spartans might be fortunate that St. Laurence never participated.

St. Laurence wins

Quarterback Gene Kenny scored on a 13-yard run and later passed 45 yards to Mike Stawski for a second touchdown as St. Laurence defeated Gordon Tech, 14-0, Sunday afternoon in their Chicago Catholic League opener.

ence," said Menely "and now I think we solved our problems."

Arlington was ninth at Crystal Lake as sophomore Tom Tremblay took 24th place for the Cards.

In other meets, Palatine finished third out of four teams at York, Prospect was seventh at the Hinsdale Invite, and Rolling Meadows notched a second spot at the Maine North Invitational.

Meadows' Tom Choice, third in 16:25, joined mates Dave Gish, Germano, Bill Bradley, and Dave Campbell to give the Mustangs five runners in the top 15. Maine North won the six-team meet by four points.

Palatine got good efforts from Pete Kearns (14th), Tony Vargas (15th) Mike Monson, and Jeff Siemon, but York was too tough for everybody, posting 19 points. Maine South had 44, Palatine 81, and Barrington 96.

Prospect's top finishers were Matt Lawson (18th), Bill Hrbek (22nd), Mark Smith (29th), and Jack Pittman 39th).

Cards take thriller

Arlington defenders, and Homewood went ahead 25-21 on a 10-yard curl-in pattern.

Undaunted by the situation, the Cardinals put their two-minute drill into operation and went right at the Vikings with a passing attack.

Dinielli returned the kickoff to midfield. Tom North then made a key reception and took the ball to the H-F 38.

When Shaughnessy was swarmed under for a six-yard loss on the next play, tempers flared, but only momentarily. Five players and three passes later, the cool quarterback rolled right and lofted a perfect strike to John Vukovich, who had run his flag route to the sideline, for the clinching 28-yard scoring strike. Fifteen seconds remained.

Showing the effects of the long and warm afternoon, Vukovich admitted some doubt as to what might have happened, when the drive started, but he was quite sure of what finally happened and why.

"I was open and the pass was perfect."

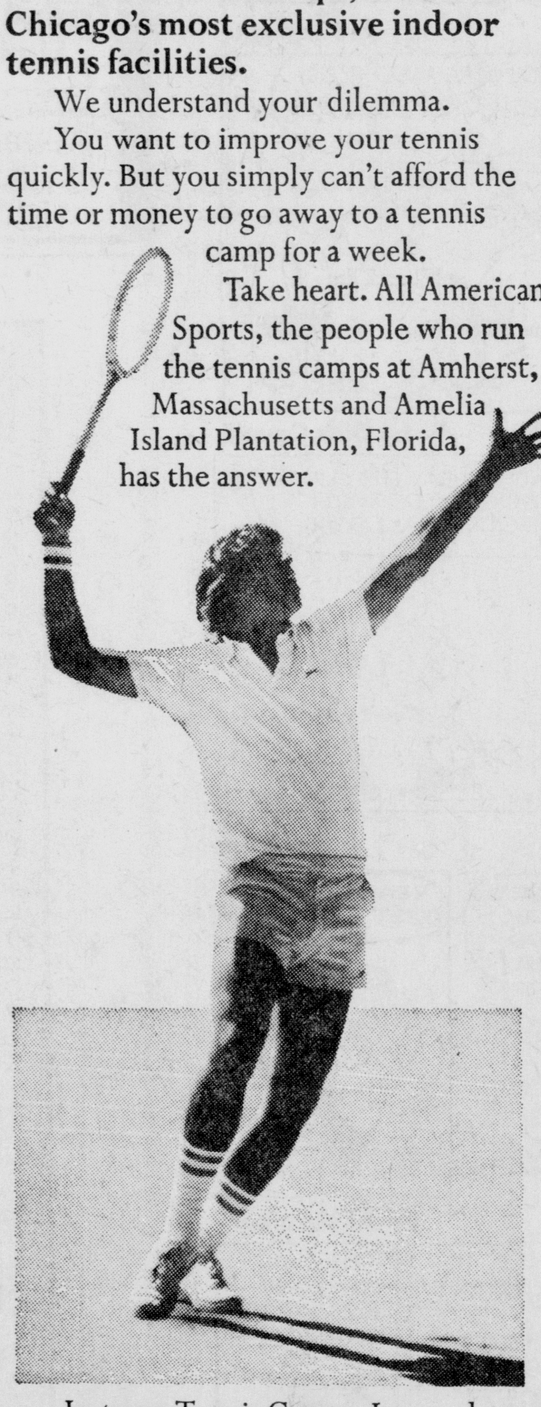
How to go to tennis camp without leaving home.

All American Sports introduces In-town Tennis Camps, at two of Chicago's most exclusive indoor tennis facilities.

We understand your dilemma.

You want to improve your tennis quickly. But you simply can't afford the time or money to go away to a tennis camp for a week.

Take heart. All American Sports, the people who run the tennis camps at Amherst, Massachusetts and Amelia Island Plantation, Florida, has the answer.



In-town Tennis Camps. Located at Chicago's Lakeshore Racquet Club and the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club.

Both camps give you the same kind of intensive instruction you get at a regular tennis camp. But you can keep right on living at home.

The All American Sports tennis program is supervised by former Wimbledon Champion Chuck McKinley. It's directed by a team of highly trained instructors, considered among the best in the country.

First, you'll be grouped with players of your own ability. Our instructors will then go to work improving every aspect of your game. From basic ground strokes to service and overhead. You will be properly drilled on strategy as well.

There will be merely four students to each instructor. And, of course, Chuck McKinley will be around personally from time to time to check on your progress.

At Lakeshore, you can sign up for a five-day session, with three hours of instruction each day. At Arlington, you get the same amount of instruction at night.

If you are too busy during the week, Arlington offers a special weekend program. You'll get six hours of intensive instruction on Saturday, and another six on Sunday.

Whichever program you select, you'll have full use of all club facilities. Saunas, sun rooms, whirlpools, lounge. On weekdays, you can even bring your children along to the attended nursery.

Animals began in ancient seas

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Jeff Katz, 11, of Milwaukee, Wis., for his question:

WHAT WERE THE FIRST LAND ANIMALS LIKE?

The first animals got their start in the ancient seas. For maybe a billion years or so, they improved themselves and branched out in various shapes and sizes. At last a few bold ones ventured out onto the dry land. It would be nice to think that these first land dwellers were pleasant, peaceable characters. But all the evidence indicates that they were not.

The positive proof depends on fossil remains preserved in ancient rocks. If the first dwellers were small, soft-bodied animals, they were too fragile to leave such durable fossils behind. For this reason, the story of the first land animals is uncertain.

Perhaps they were related to the lobe-finned fishes. They had gills and air-breathing lungs, and their fins were attached to simple, lobe-like limbs.

These odd fishes could survive even when stranded in dried-up ponds and streams. They left fossils which prove that some of them left the sea to live on land about 364 million years ago.

Meantime, certain wormy sea dwellers were making drastic changes. Eventually they left the sea to become the ancestors of the insect world. No doubt the first land-dwelling insects were too fragile to leave durable fossils. But we have plenty of proof that many highly developed insects populated the coal forests more than 300 million years ago.

However, we have fossils of still another land dweller, dating back about 400 million years. He belonged to the vast phylum of arthropods, the animals with tough, jointed shells or skins. His relatives included the lobsters and shrimps who remained in the sea.

This bold adventurer onto the dry land was the ancestor of 650 different scorpions that inhabit warm regions of our modern world. His segmented body had four pairs of walking legs, one pair of nasty pincers and a downright deadly sting in his long, curled-up tail.

Maybe the bad-tempered scorpion was the first land-dwelling animal. At any rate, his fossil record proves that he left the sea some 400 million years ago. However, someday we may find fossils to prove that lobe-finned fishes or ancestral insects conquered the land even earlier.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Marianna Russo, 11, of Tucson, Ariz., for her question:

WHICH IS THE DEEPEST OCEAN?

The oceans are huge hollow basins in the earth's rocky crust, filled and brimming over with salty sea water. Actually, they are linked together in one huge global ocean that covers almost three-quarters of our watery world. Their edges slop over shallow slopes around the shores. But most of the water is held in mid-ocean where steep-sided walls plunge down to the bottom of the basins.

On the floor of the ocean there are massive mountains, level plains and deep valleys. If all its ups and downs were leveled, its average depth would be more than two miles.

The vast Pacific, which covers more than a third of the globe, is the deepest ocean. Its average depth is about 14,000 feet, or almost three miles. Its deepest known ditch is called Challenger Deep — which plunges 36,198 feet below the surface.

Thinking wasted on ostrich-like North

The ostrich is supposed to stick its head in the sand on the theory that no one will be able to see it. North's bidding of today's hand was along the same lines. He couldn't raise from two to three diamonds, since that call would encourage his opponents to bid on to game.

Maybe it would, but our experience is that when East opens the bidding and his partner gives him a raise, he is going to game with any sort of excuse.

Anyway, when East did bid game our ostrich-like North pulled his head out of the sand and bid five diamonds.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Perfect defense would have set South three tricks, but after the defenders failed to shift to clubs on time, South was able to set up dummy's jack of hearts for a club discard.

"Nice play, partner," said North. "Down 300 isn't bad."

"Like tilting at windmills," replied South. If you had bid three diamonds right away you wouldn't have been impelled to bid five. Neither would I and we would have set four spades one trick to show a profit of 100 points instead of a loss of 300."
